

illuminate the bay

Illuminate the unique landmark for our region, the San Diego-Coronado Bay Bridge.

“Light for me as an artist is a cultural thing; not simply linked to the design of cities, buildings and landscapes in a functional manner but existing inherently as a part of the life of people for whom these structures were built.”

- Peter Fink, Artist

illuminate the bay

The San Diego-Coronado Bay Bridge Lighting Project is an artist-designed, programmable LED lighting installation, powered from sustainable energy sources, which will create a unique aesthetic identity for the bridge and the bay after dark.

A unique aesthetic identity

Designed by internationally recognized artist Peter Fink and his team, the lighting concept was selected through a worldwide competition in 2010. Illuminating the bridge celebrates a recognized San Diego landmark while creating a distinctive and timeless signature artwork for the region.

The project is being managed through a partnership between the Port of San Diego and the California Department of Transportation (Caltrans), and will be entirely funded through donations. The Port is leading the fundraising campaign to raise $10 million to bring the project to completion by the target date of 2019.
