

Breakbulk Cargo

Breakbulk Cargo Ships in Unique Ways

Freestanding, on pallets, raw stacks, in bags, bundles and barrels. Sometimes being different is an advantage. It helps when you have a partner who thinks outside the box.

The Port of San Diego specializes in specialty cargo.

We have the space, flexibility, expertise, competitive rates and commitment to customer service to handle all of your breakbulk and project cargo needs, large or small. The Port has expertise handling engines, turbines, propellers, steel, windmill components, yachts, roll-on, roll-off including vehicles and wheeled equipment, lumber, bagged commodities, brewery equipment, tanks and more.

We help you take advantage of being different.

Fewer large container ships means less time processing, less time waiting, less time wasted. Move your specialty cargo from ship to ground to market much faster. That's the special advantage San Diego offers.

Laydown and storage space

- 8 acres of laydown space
- 10 acres of covered space
- 300,000-square-foot (27,871 square meters) temperature-controlled warehouse
- Flexible short- and long-term storage options

State-of-the-art cargo handling

- Mobile Harbor Crane: 100-metric-ton Gottwald HMK 300E
- Truck, on-dock rail and barge access
- 42-foot draft (12.8 meters)
- Access to interstates 8, 5, 15 and 805 within minutes
- Resident experts in project cargo handling from longshoremen to stevedores to security to Port staff

THE SPECIAL ADVANTAGE

