

Dry Bulk Cargo

Shipping dry bulk cargo requires special skills, equipment and attention to detail.

When success is measured by speed, efficiency and safety, you need to work with a partner who thrives on complicated. Then again, sometimes being complicated can be a special advantage.

The Port of San Diego specializes in specialty cargo.

We have the space, flexibility, expertise, competitive rates and commitment to customer service to handle all of your dry bulk cargo needs, large or small. The Port has expertise handling soda ash, bauxite, cement, fertilizer, sand and more.

We help you take advantage of being different.

Fewer large container ships means less time processing, less time waiting, less time wasted. Keep your dry bulk cargo flowing from ship to dock to market much faster. That's the special advantage San Diego offers.

State-of-the-art storage and cargo handling

- 1,800-ton-per-hour bulk loader
- 32,900-metric-ton bulk storage silo complex
- On-dock rail with bulk handling capability
- Up to one million square feet of covered storage space
- 42-foot draft (12.8 meters)
- Access to interstates 8, 5, 15 and 805 within minutes

THE SPECIAL ADVANTAGE

